

SOPHOMORES KNOCKED OUT.

FRESHMEN TRIUMPHANT IN A BATTLE AT PRINCETON.

Three Hundred Strong, They Capture the Which Blood Flowed Freely-Clothes Are Torn, but Nobody Badly Injured.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 19.-This has freshmen. When they were trying to hold a class meeting for the election of officers this afternoon they were attacked by the sophomores, who were incensed because the first-year men would not remove their caps when ordered to do so. Both classes entered spiritedly into the fray and many upper classmen, some of them football players, joined with the freshmen in their effort to repulse the attack. The fight lasted several minutes and s some hard blows were struck before the entering students were able to go on with

One sophomore, who stole a freshman's cap, was pounced on by several juniors and his clothes were torn almost to shreds before he surrendered the trophy. At the end of the meeting the sophomores renewed their attack. When the freshmen attempted to parade across the campus hand-to-hand encounters ensued, but the freshmen had their ranks well marshalled and completed their march. Two men were carried out with badly out faces. One had his nose broken.

prestige which they had established this afternoon by winning the time-honored rush around the historic cannon in the rush around the historic cannon in the college quadrangle. Dressed in sweaters and corduroy trousers, the first-year men, more than 300 strong, were drawn up in two divisions in front of Nassau Hall. The sophomores stood around the old Revolutionary relic which they were to defend against the freshmen's attack.

At the cry, "Here they come! raised by the men in the quadrangle, the first-year students started their men toward the cannon. The two columns struck the compact mass of sophomores on a dead run, almost at the same instant. For a second the "sophs" held their ground. Then the freshmen ploughed their way through, and the two classes surged madly around the cannon for ten minutes, fighting and velling.

Blood flowed freely. When the fighting had ceased several freshmen were found with their arms around the cannon. So far as can be learned, nobody was seriously hurt in the fray, although many had their clothes torn and are nursing bad bruises. After the struggle the freshmen cheered lustily. Then they hastened to their room, out of the way of the exasperated soph-

A DIZZY ROUND FOR A MONTH. Cierk Smith of the Comptroller's Office Cut a Swath in Williamsburg.

Edgar R. Gallavan, proprietor of the Gallavan House at Broadway and Driggs avenue, Williamsburg, in the Lee avenue police court yesterday, accused William A. Smith, a bond clerk in the Comptroller's office, who lives at 177 North Eighth street, of having defrauded him of $147. Smith, Gallavan avers, was at the hotel almost To-night the freshmen followed up the every day last April. He took young women there and treated them to champagne dinners. Besides leaving the bills unpaid, Smith, on several occasions, borrowed money from Gallavan to take the women to a theatre.

The bill for $147, Gallavan says, was incurred in April. In the early part of may Gallavan sent Smith a bill and requested payment. Smith kept away from the otel, and when Gallavan met him and demanded his money Smith said that he Gallavan showed in court the checks of his waiters for dinners, salads, wines, cordials and cigars that Smith had with his "lady friends." There were checks which showed that on April 6 Smith and West Ninety-eighth street to which Johnston two young women ran up a bill of $17.85. including numerous cocktails.

THEIR THREE DIVORCE SUITS.

DE COSTER BEGINS ONE, AND HIS WIFE HAS TWO ON HAND.

It's the Case of the Tall Woman and the Short Man-What the Janitor's Wife Says She Saw in Mrs. De Coster's Uptown Apartment Last Winter.

The number of the De Coster divorce suits is increasing. Mrs. De Coster, wife of Robert De Coster, the decorative artist has two actions for absolute divorce pending in the Supreme Court, and now her husband lost it at the Sheepshead Bay racetrack. has started one on his own account, as he says that her suits are being purposely delayed. He names as corespondent Alexander Johnston, and says that Mrs. De Coster occupied an apartment at 64

She has already obtained an order from the court granting her $15 a week and $100 for her counsel, but she claims that in view of the action begun by her husband she is entitled to more money. De Coster, represented by Lawyer Montagu Thain, opposed the motion on the ground that some of the acts they charge Mrs. De Coster with were com-Born to Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Van Alen.

One of the affidavits in the case is sworn to by Mrs. Sarah Graef, wife of the superintendent of the Ninety-eighth street apartment house. Mrs. Graef says that Mrs. De Coster rented an apartment there from November last to May of this year. Johnston, who had a key to the place, used to call at all hours and often stayed all night. Mrs. Graef continues:

all night. Mrs. Graef continues; "Once Mrs. De Coster called me to her rooms, and I found her in a bathrobe, while Johnston, only partially dressed, was hiding behind a door in the hall. Another time Johnston called her up on the telephone. He seemed to say something that hurt her feelings, for she cried like a child; she would take a can and child: she said she would take a cab and meet him, calling him her 'darling Sandy and begged him not to leave her."
